

Tim MacCaffrey. Lead Wales Programme.

Within his background of project management, Mac spent many years in the telecoms and blue chip sectors rolling out new systems within international businesses. This included the rollout of new consumer based products and services within the European Community.

Mac's current focus as Head of the LEAD Wales Programme within the Business Centre at Swansea University is on implementing the engagement of academia with associated teaching, research and laboratory space and encouraging these sectors to act as drivers for the regional economy in South Wales.
